

tell," UN Watch director Hillel C. Neuer wrote.

"Here's what happened," he said. "In a UNHRC debate targeting Israel alone, I took the floor after Iran, Syria, Pakistan, and dozens of other despotic regimes lined up to condemn the Jewish state for 'crimes against humanity.' I had 90 seconds to speak. I turned the tables on the UN itself — on UNRWA, the UN agency that runs schools for Palestinians, which is funded with hundreds of millions of dollars from the US, UK, EU, Germany, Canada, and other Western nations.

"I took the floor and said: 'Madam President, Is UNRWA supporting peace? Let us consider UN Watch's recent report on the teachers they hire, by looking at their social media. Nahed Sharawi, an UNRWA math teacher in Gaza, posted a video of Adolf Hitler, along with quotes to 'enrich and enlighten your thoughts and minds.' Husni Masri, an UNRWA teacher in the West Bank, posted antisemitic conspiracy theories, about how Jews control the world, created the coronavirus, and seek to destroy Islam...'

"Suddenly, the Chair of the Human Rights Council, Nazhat Shameem Khan, cut me off and interrupted my testimony — something she has never done to even Iran, Syria, and the PLO when they voice support for terrorists.

"The Chair said I had made 'derogatory, insulting and inflammatory remarks' which amounted to 'personal attacks.' Meanwhile, all I had done was to quote their own Facebook posts.

"This statement is out of order,' ruled Khan.

"You couldn't make it up: I was silenced by the UN for calling out its own anti-Semitism... In my 17 years at the United Nations, this was the worst form of censorship I have ever experienced."

Israeli Ambassador to the UN Gilad Erdan was likewise prevented from bringing a display poster into the General Assembly, which featured the above-mentioned social media posts glorifying Hitler.

"UNRWA is part of the problem, not the solution, and the time has come for the international community to hold it accountable," Erdan said.

But UNRWA Commissioner-General

Philippe Lazzarini was allowed to give free reign to his imagination at the conference, claiming that the UNWRA has "a zero-tolerance policy for hate speech, incitement, discrimination, hostility or violence."

"Politically motivated attacks on our education system and more broadly against the agency are increasing in frequency and in aggression," he said.

VACCINATIONS AT HOME PROJECT

An Israeli study determined that the risk of developing myocarditis (a heart inflammation) after taking the Pfizer vaccine is extremely low, with only one out 142 vaccinated Israelis suffering from the condition. To encourage people to get vaccinated, Israel initiated a "getting vaccinated at home" project to inoculate people where they live.

Israel is also trying to make testing easier, with the introduction of a saliva-based PCR pilot test developed at Bar Ilan University to replace nasal swabbing. The new test is less unpleasant and delivers results in 45 minutes rather than several hours.

An Israeli study of 5,000 people made the surprising discovery that the only exception to a steady decrease of antibodies six months after a second vaccine is among people who are overweight, despite their general increased risk of serious illness.

"TRUMP" DRUG COMES TO ISRAEL

Regeneron, a drug that made headlines when it was utilized by former president Donald Trump, arrived in Israel with a price tag of $1,500 per patient, covered by Israel's public health bodies. The medicine reduces severe illness substantially when given within 72 hours of infection.

Strangely, only about 260 patients agreed to use the medicine since September 23, with 300 refusing to take it due to its novelty. This was in stark contrast to fears of the health establishment that the supply would soon be depleted by public demand.

WILL NEW TOURIST POLICY INCLUDE AMERICANS?

Prof. Nachman Ash said that tourists may be able to visit Israel as early as November after being locked out for 18 months, if they meet criteria whose final details are still being discussed. In general, they will need digital certifications of vaccination or of past illness sufficient to guarantee that they are not carrying the virus.

However, although 40 countries issue digital certification, the US — except for a few states — does not. Developing a system to read Americans' paperwork might take a few weeks and force Americans to wait longer to get into Israel, Ash said.

ISRAEL'S CORONAVIRUS WAVE CONTINUES TO SUBSIDE

Israel's Covid wave continued to subside, with only 2,323 newly diagnosed cases on Monday. This constituted a minuscule 2% of people who came in for testing. Only 20 of the diagnosed were in serious condition, in a drastic drop from earlier weeks. This brought the number of seriously ill patients to 427, with 219 in critical condition and 187 on inhalators. Twenty patients died on Monday, raising the total number of people who died from the virus to 7,940.

The severely ill patients included a six-month-old baby girl with severe post-Covid symptoms, as well as 11 unvaccinated women, nine of them postpartum and two expectant. A seven-year-old girl was severely ill with post-Covid symptoms after her mother deliberately infected her with the virus to save from repetitive quarantines.

Despite the drop in new cases, Israel's 82 ECMO machines were still in high demand due to a record 58 patients on the devices that Israel was ordering from overseas. Some 90% of the ECMO patients were not vaccinated, as were almost all Israel's seriously ill patients.

Only five towns were red, including Telz Stone west of Yerushalayim.

"It looks like this wave is on its way to being behind us," the Health Ministry's director-general, Prof. Nachman Ash said.

BEIS DIN SIDES RECOMMENDS VACCINATION

A divorced father told the Regional Beis Din of Yerushalayim that he did not want his two children to be vaccinated, while his wife, who also had custody of the children, was adamant they get the jab.

In a lengthy psak, the beis din ruled: "After examining the best interests of the specific children and in light of all the above, the court rules that the mother may vaccinate the minors' children of the parties, even without the father's consent. This is on condition that the older son (15 years old) agrees to get vaccinated and does not object due to his relative mature age."

NEW GREEN PASSES

Due to the downward trend in infections, the Corona Cabinet relaxed the need for green cards in many locations, including outdoor restaurants, open-air activities like jeep tours and kayaking, and indoor swimming pools.

Israel began a regimen of new green passes that have stricter criteria, after a hiccup of hundreds of thousands being unable to download the new passes due to glitches on Health Ministry websites.

Some 1.9 million Israelis had failed to meet the new, stricter criteria, and myriads were scrambling to get their vaccinations up to date. The same necessity for new green cards applied to people returning to or visiting Israel who wanted to avoid testing and quarantines. New green passes were not to be issued to non-Israelis until October 17.
