

YERUSHALAYIM TERRORIST PLANNED MORE ATTACKS

At the indictment of the terrorist responsible for the double bombing in Yerushalayim in November, it was revealed that he was confident he had covered his tracks and was planning a third attack at a hitchhiking location in the capital.

After the attack, the terrorist returned to the factory where he worked and then returned home.

It was also revealed that the first bomb detonated prematurely, killing two victims and wounded many others who may have not escaped had the device exploded as planned.

DISPROPORTIONATE ARRESTS OF ETHIOPIANS

A report released by the Association of Ethiopian Jews and the Hebrew University claims that police open criminal cases against 159,000 Israelis of Ethiopian descent disproportionately, with double the rate of other Israelis between 2018–2020 and 4.3 times the regular rate for minors.

The Palmor Committee, formed after protests took place against the violent arrest of an Ethiopian soldier who was beaten by police in 2015, came to a similar conclusion.

“The police data demonstrate that Israelis of Ethiopian descent continue to suffer from over-policing and that profiling and discrimination remain a part of the police’s DNA,” said Rina Ayalin-Gorelik, director of the association.

NEW TRANSPORTATION MINISTER GETTING RID OF HOV LANES

Newly appointed Transportation Minister Miri Regev threatened to cancel at least some special lanes on major highways set aside by her predecessor Merav Michaeli for public transport, saying they do more harm than good.

“Getting stuck in traffic and seeing an empty public transportation lane won’t happen under my watch,” Regev said. “If the lane is not used by enough buses, money should be added to have more buses, or cancel it.”

Regev will continue with the plan to upgrade train transportation, saying that although traffic jams are a scourge, “For people to give up having a private car, they must get better public transportation.”

Regev said she would oppose funding the advancement of a metro in the Tel Aviv area from state funds, saying it was unnecessary. Instead, “lightning-fast bullet trains” should be built to “connect Israel across its length and breadth, from Kiryat Shemonah to Eilat,” she said.

She was also considering two projects she initiated in the past and canceled by Michaeli — a sea shuttle from Tel Aviv to northern Israel, and a train on wheels that could travel on regular highways.

CONVEYER BELT TO REDUCE FOOD PRICES

A 1.4-mile grain conveyor belt in the Ashdod port, constructed at a cost of $70 million, is expected to lower the prices of transporting grains to Israel for importers and carriers, with savings passed onto the consumer.

The savings will result from ships unloading more of the five million tons of grain imported into Israel annually at Ashdod instead of Haifa, cutting the number of tens of thousands of trucks a year transporting grain to central and southern Israel by 40%.

Reduced freight rates will hopefully reach the pocket of the final consumer.

FORTY CHILDREN INJURED IN COLLISION

A 10-year-old girl sustained a serious head wound and 38 other passengers, many of them children, were lightly hurt when a bus transporting children, parents, and teachers smashed into a truck on Highway 1 that links Yerushalayim to Tel Aviv.

The girl was taken to Shaarei Tzedek Hospital, where doctors fought to save her life.

The bus was one of three taking children from the Even Yehuda municipal district on a school trip to the Yerushalayim hills.
